educational assistant in special education, the educational assistant in special education program prepares individuals for a career in special education, whether in educational settings, such as special education classrooms or in other educational settings. The program includes coursework in educational psychology, special education law, and special education methodology.

The Master of Arts in Special Education program is designed to prepare educators for leadership roles in special education, such as special education coordinators, special education supervisors, and special education administrators. The program includes coursework in special education policy, special education law, and special education methodology.

The Doctorate in Special Education is designed for educators who wish to pursue a career in special education research, such as special education professors, special education researchers, and special education consultants. The program includes coursework in special education research, special education methodology, and special education policy.

The Internship Experience

The crucial internship year

Lessen the financial burden for students during education:

Education Teacher Candidates at MSU Each Year

Cover a portion of tuition for at least two special

The LD/ADHD/Asperger’s/ADD/ADHD+ Foundation will assist in the financial strain on the path to working in the field.

In honor of Dr. Curtis’ legacy, the University of Michigan has made a grant to MSU that will assist the next generation of future educators on the path to working in the field.

A Partnership with MSU

Supporting future special educators.